

THE WILLIAM P. CLEMENTS CENTER FOR SOUTHWEST STUDIES INVITES YOU TO:

Consuming (Interests): Photographs from Taos, New

*Debora Hunter,
Associate Professor of Art, Meadows School of the Arts, SMU*

Noon Gallery Talk:
Wednesday,
September 18, 2013
Pollock Gallery,
Hughes-Trigg
Student Center
on the campus of SMU
3140 Dyer Street
12 noon to 1 p.m.

The William P. Clements
Center for Southwest Studies
Phone: 214-768-3684
E-mail: swcenter@smu.edu
www.smu.edu/swcenter

Debora Hunter has been photographing the cultural landscape of Taos, New Mexico for the past ten years. Through photographing the domestic and commercial architecture within the majestic sweep of sky and land, she reframes the question of man versus nature. This inquiry is ever more urgent as consumer culture bumps hard against diminishing natural resources. She has exhibited this work at the Kelly Contemporary Gallery and the New Mexico History Museum in Santa Fe.

From September 6 through October 12, 2013, a selection from her larger archive of images will be exhibited in a solo show, "Consuming (Interests): Photographs from Taos, New Mexico" at the Pollock Gallery, Hughes-Trigg Student Center, SMU.

For more information about Debora Hunter and her work, please see www.deborahunter.com

Image: Untitled, Debora Hunter, 2013.